BRINGING THE CITY TO THE COUNTRY

RURAL MAIL SERVICE HAS WROUGHT GREAT CHANGES

Transformed Inhabitants of Farm Into a Cosmopolitan Citizen Occupying a Larger Place in the Destinies of the Nation—Suggested by John Wanamaker.

Few institutions in the history of American progress can be credited with a more salutary effect upon the march of that progress than the rural mail service of the postoffice department.

No other single instrumentality has done more toward "bringing the city to the country," and relieving the prosaic existence of farm life, or has been as effective in establishing closer contact between the farmer and his markets. It has been the most important factor in making agriculture an exacting business instead of its one-time precarious classification which conveyed no broader meaning than "tilling the soil."

Twenty-nine years ago the farmer and his wife and children, led an existence of almost complete isolation, living upon widely scattered farms, some of them miles apart. They had comparatively little communication with their neighbors or the outside world, except that derived from weekly trips to the adjacent village. More often than not the farmer lost a full day's work and his crops were neglected in order to obtain expected mail at the village postoffice.

In those days the farmers' mail consisted largely of communications from relatives and friends. Today the daily mail includes, usually on the very date of publication, the metropolitan newspaper, containing market reports and agricultural news; the weekly and monthly farm journals and magazines, and business letters from the village merchant and the more pretentious establishment in the distant city. All of these are now brought to his door or to the box a few yards away.

The rural carrier is the farmer's post office and his agent. Thru him he conducts transactions for the sale of his live stock, grain and other farm produce. From him he buys stamps and pays his bills by postal money order. In short, the letter carrier is the medium that has transformed the once secluded inhabitant of the rural district into a cosmopolitan citizen, conversant with current affairs and occupying a larger place in the destinies of a great nation.

It was Postmaster General John Wanamaker who first officially suggested in 1891 the rural mail idea to congress. The plan was fought in the legislative branch of the government for five years before it was given a try-out.

When the service was first inaugurated the salaries of rural carriers was only $200 a year. They may now get as much as $2,160 a year, depending on the length of the routes, while the motor routes of 50 miles or more pay salaries of $2,450 to $2,600.

Under the administration of H. H. Billany, present fourth assistant postmaster general, a marked increase in rural delivery facilities has been made the number of routes climbing from 43,649 to 44,760; the mileage from 1,159,339 to 1,205,714 and the number of individuals served from 29,113,883 to 29,921,123.

Illinois leads the nation both in the number of rural routes and in mileage there being 2,637 routes covering a distance of 70,677 miles in that state. Ohio is second with 2,542 routes and a mileage of 63,820.

DREAMS ARE NOW A REALITY

Business and Professional Women's Club Have New Home.

Tra la la. O girls ain't it grand and won't the boys be jealous?

Now, when you come up town evenings, and want some place to go where you can roll your own a little tighter, put some fresh kalsomine on for the one and only's benefit, or just want to get away from the old pest who is also looking for an excuse to get away—you got it.

That is, if you are a member of the "exclusive" Business and Professional Women's club, for at the regular meeting held Tuesday evening in the Post room at the Memorial hall, Mrs. Roy Davis, vice president, acting for Mrs. Graham, the president, told the club that thru the kindness of Dr. Isa B. Carr, one of their honored members the club room they had all dreamed of but really expected to be a thing of the future was a reality. Needless to say the vote of thanks was given Dr. Carr for to be honest everyone was so elated over the news they almost forgot to thank her.

Dr. Carr having leased the flat over the Citizens Telephone exchange where she will have her office and living quarters has sub leased the large living room to the club for a very nominal sum. It is not an immense club house but for the number of club members sufficiently large.

The meeting was a very entertaining one as the committee in charge, Miss Wilder, Miss Southward and Mrs. Grigsby had arranged a program consisting of two minute talks by different club members on some subject relative to their employment.

A very interesting and instructive talk was given by Mrs. Esther Work on "Watts" telling of the growth of the electric companies in this city. Miss May Lowe gave a demonstration of the different tools used in the printing business and compared them to life. For instance she stated coins were a necessary implement in printing as in life. Miss Butch was more than glad to tell of the work of the Red Cross in Pickaway county and closed her talk with a plea to the club to help Miss Phelps arrange more livable quarters for the poor of the city. Miss Helen Rowe's paper on "The Little Red Schoolhouse Grown Up" was very interesting and instructive.

The club plans to hold their next meeting in the new club room.

Enraged, the father seized the baby and clapped his hands over its mouth, suffocating it before he realized the danger.

Disguised as a flapper, City Marshal John E. Parker of Gloucester, Mass., found it easy to gather evidence against the bootleggers who have been operating in his town. Novel Experiences.
Did you ever chance to see a sword fish, a bottle fly, a stone fence, a cat nip, a bed spring, a mill race, corn prick up its ears or a potato wipe its eyes? Or have you ever had the novel experience of hearing a birch bark, a pillow tick, or a tree top hum? asks Gas Logic.

Her Excuse a Good One.
Carrie was invited to a party. Her mother cautioned her not to begin eating her goodies until all around the table had been helped. Carrie was honored with the first helping to ice cream. In a few moments she said: "Excuse me for eating my ice cream before it melts. I enjoy it best while it is frozen."

The Poet's Conditions
Wherever snow falls or water flows or birds fly, wherever day and night meet in twilight, wherever the blue heaven is hung by clouds or sown with stars, wherever are forms with transparent boundaries, wherever are outlets into celestial space, there is beauty, plenteous as rain, shed for thee, and though thou shouldst walk the world over, thou shalt not be able to find a condition inopportune or ignoble.—Emerson.

Pure Bred Sire Is Best for Breeding
Female Ancestry Should Show High Records.

"Future development of the herd," says O. E. Reed, formerly of Kansas, now with Michigan College of Agriculture, "depends to a great extent upon the kind of sire used with the herd." It has been said that the sire is half the herd and it is a fact that all future cows in the herd carry 50 per cent of his breeding.

The herd sire should be pure bred of the breed he represents and be backed by good ancestry. If possible he should be a sire whose mother and other close female ancestry have shown high records of production. A yearly record is to be preferred to one of shorter duration.

If it is not possible to know the record of production one should by all means see the mother of the animal in question and note how closely she conforms to good dairy type. If the sire's father has daughters that have proved to be good producers he is more certain to transmit the dairy qualities desired. Very often it is possible to buy an old sire that has proved to be a good breeder. Good results from the use of such an animal are almost certain. The objection to buying an old bull is that he is high priced if his value is known and one runs the chance of getting an unruly animal. A bull calf is usually selected. A calf can be purchased for less money and the owner can train him as he chooses. Too much attention cannot be given to the selection of a sire, for future success depends largely upon the head of the herd.—Kansas Bulletin No. 167.

Codling Moth Is Able to Stand Cold Weather

The natural check put upon the codling moth larvae by low winter temperatures is often over-estimated by the fruit grower. The most of our insects winter in the pupa or egg stage and usually in well protected places. The codling moth is an exception and winters as a caterpillar under loose bark usually well above the ground surface. One would suppose that temperatures approximating zero would kill these frail larvae under their scant protection. Observations made in the state of Washington show that low temperatures do play havoc with these larvae, but unless these temperatures are exceptionally low, the codling moth does not suffer serious winter-killing. In Washington it was found that temperatures of 25 degrees below zero Fahrenheit were followed with complete killing of over-wintering codling moth larvae. Temperatures near 15 degrees below zero still allowed 30 per cent to come through unharmed. The most efficient natural check is not temperature or birds, or even insect parasites. It is the total failure of the apple crop, due to late frosts or other causes, which removes food for the insect. It is a well known fact that after years of complete failure of the apple crop, codling moth damage is likely to be very light. Its ability to come back is strong and in the year following this failure the schedule of three sprays carefully directed against the pest, cannot be safely altered.—T. H. Parks, Ohio State University.

Egg Production Depends Largely on Green Feeds

If you want to get the best results from your hens this fall and winter, provide them with plenty of green food. Green food is essential to egg production, is a stimulant to the fowls, and also possesses vitamins that are essential to body health and development.

There are two ways of supplying green food to the hen, says D. H. Hall, extension poultry husbandman at the Clemson college. The first method is by planting green food in the yard and allowing the poultry access to it. The second method is by supplying green food each day to the poultry from another lot. The first method requires less labor and is less expensive.

The best green feeds for poultry are: Rape, cabbage, collards, oats, rye; and nearly any of these can be planted in the fall and will supply green food for the winter. Egg production depends to a large extent on green food. Plant green food now and have high priced eggs this winter.

Farm Hints

Farming becomes more interesting as it becomes more intelligent.

Green feed, such as sprouted oats, cabbage, turnips, beets and rape, are necessary for the health of the pullets.

A dozen horseshoes over the barn door will not prevent the bad luck that comes from winter neglect of live stock.

Make sure that the ensilage cutter is in good repair, so that there will be no delay when it comes time for using.

The more feed one can get into pigs from two weeks of age on, the faster they are going to gain, providing, of course, provision has been made for plenty of exercise.

Forty-Two

NADINE sized him up at once. You bet. A girl doesn't work three years at the switchboard of an apartment hotel for nothing.

He came in a taxicab, with two handsome grips, and four trunks followed later. Nadine, from her perch in the lobby, watched him enter the elevator with the taxi driver totting the grips, and when the car had returned, Able Lipwurtz, the elevator boy, winked wisely at Nadine.

"I'll say," he called to her.

"I'll say," Nadine called back.

On that very first day, too, as he passed the switchboard on his way out, Three Forty-Two gave himself away some more by half stopping and staring at Nadine. Nadine stared back.

He wore beautiful clothes--no class, but you could tell they cost a lot, and on his left arm a band of crepe.

Pretty soon, things would begin to happen. There would be telephone calls for Three Forty-Two, and these would be interesting to listen in on--guarded calls from ladies who have to be careful. And ladies who have to be careful would alight from taxicabs and saunter in and enter the elevator in the most casual sort of way, and get off at the third floor looking that innocent.

Meanwhile, he spoke pleasantly every morning to Nadine, as he passed out, and again as he returned from his day at whatever it was that occupied him. And Nadine spoke pleasantly to Three Forty-Two. On the third day he gave Able Lipwurtz a dollar.

"Sure, a dollar's all right," Able told Nadine, "but a dollar ain't anything to make a guy blind. For five dollars, maybe, I'd go part blind, and for twenty dollars I couldn't see a thing."

"I'll say," said Nadine, and smiled at him.

On the fourth day, on his way out, he stopped and had Nadine get a number for him, stepping into the booth to talk, and gave her a dollar bill and one of those "seen-you-somewhere" looks.

There was nothing in the telephone conversation. Just an appointment with a lawyer. Able Lipwurtz, leaving his cage to talk to Nadine, which is strictly against the rules, reported nothing doing in his department either.

"But he thinks you're the flea's crutch all right. Maybe he's going to do a little home prospecting. Flowers will be about his speed. And when he does, I'll say."

"I'll say a plenty if he does, I'll say. I beg your pardon, madam; I answered the moment the light showed."

But nothing happened just yet, not for several days. Then, on a rainy morning, Three Forty-Two came down late and looking a bit of all in. He clomped over to his desk with his stiff-kneed, wooden soldier walk, and opened his mouth to speak, then shook his head and turned and clomped out.

"What do you make of that?" called Nadine to Able.

"Getting warm," Able called back. "Getting warm, I'll say."

And then, an hour later, it happened. Three Forty-Two came back, bearing in his arms a great long green cardboard box, which could contain nothing but flowers. And even as he approached, Nadine could see that there was a note tied to the cord which bound the bundle.

He clomped up to the telephone desk, laid the package on the rail, gave Nadine one of those "seen-you-somewhere" looks and hurried over to the elevator.

"Up," he ordered querulously, so that Able Lipwurtz, although racked with curiosity, must obey.

Nadine tore the note from the string that held it, ran a finger under the flap, shucked out the contents. There was a note, and a brand new hundred-dollar bill.

"My dear," it started, "you are so beautiful and sweet that--"

The tremble scrawl had come to the bottom of the page, and without waiting to turn the sheet Nadine jabbed a plug into Three Forty-Two. Then something made her pause, and she read on before she rang:

"You remind me constantly of my daughter. I am so utterly alone now that she has gone, and today would have been her birthday. Always on her birthday I gave her flowers and a sum of money. Keep these, I beg you--"

She read no more, but rang Three Forty-Two.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, I'm so sorry," she cried. "I didn't know, and I thought--but I'm not sweet and beautiful. I'm a bad, hateful girl, but if there's anything I can do--"

She turned from the dangling transmitter, choked, pulled the plug. After a long while she looked up from the note. Able Lipwurtz stood by the rail, elbow on it, leaning.

"I'll say," said Able.

Nadine snapped at him:

"I'll say, I'll say, I'll say. Is that all you can say--I'll say? Get back to your cage in a hurry or what I'll say to the manager will be plenty. A person'd think that in maybe a hundred years more you'd get so you could tell a gentleman when you saw one."

FEDERAL PRISONERS SHOW AN INCREASE

Report Gives 602 More in Last Year Than in 1923.

Washington.--The number of federal prisoners continues to increase at a rapid rate, according to figures compiled by the superintendent of prisons which are incorporated in the annual report of Harlan F. Stone, attorney general of the United States, recently made public. On June 30, 1924, 7,007 prisoners were confined in the United States penitentiaries at Atlanta, Ga.; Leavenworth, Kans.; McNeil Island, Wash.; the National Training School for Boys, the National Training School for Girls and state institutions other than county jails. On June 30, 1924, there were 7,065 prisoners in these institutions. This is an increase of 602 over 1923.

Of the 7,067 confined on June 30, 1924, there were 6,225 in the United States penitentiaries, 292 in the state and territorial penitentiaries, 270 in state reformatories and training schools, 198 in the National Training School for Boys, 154 in St. Elizabeth's hospital and 528 in miscellaneous institutions, such as workhouses and houses of correction.

"The maintenance cost during the year was $1,532,763.41 for 6,225 prisoners confined in the United States penitentiaries, as against $1,478,602.13 for the 5,706 prisoners confined in the same institutions during the fiscal year 1923," says the report.

"There were released on parole 900, compared with 829 in 1923. Of this number, 697 were released from the federal penitentiaries, compared with 638 in 1923. The paroles of 47 prisoners were terminated for violation of the conditions of their parole, compared with 43 in 1923.

New Prisons Under Way.

"Paroled prisoners earned for themselves in the year $941,004.92. These figures do not include the value of crops, etc., produced by those who were engaged in farming for themselves, or board and lodging received. In the previous year the money earnings of paroled prisoners amounted to $750,050.41. The number of prisoners paroled this year is 80 more than last year."

Regarding what has been done to all the need for new prisons, the report says:

"The most urgent need was for an adequate and appropriate institution for the incarceration of female offenders against the laws of the United States. The federal government never has had any institution of its own in which to incarcerate female prisoners. It always has been necessary to rely upon the good will of the states to secure accommodations for this class of prisoners. Few, if any, however, had sufficient and desirable accommodations. This situation was met by the passage on June 7, 1924, of a bill which embodies the best thought of practical penologists. The law provides for the establishment of an industrial reformatory rather than a penitentiary. The women will be segregated into classes, according to age and past criminal record. The discipline will be correctional and designed to prevent the inmates from becoming hardened criminals.

"Hardly less urgent was the need for an institution for the incarceration of the young man who had committed his first offense. It has been necessary to incarcerate these young offenders with old and hardened criminals. A bill was introduced in congress providing for the establishment of a reformatory for first offenders between the ages of seventeen and thirty years. It passed the house and it is hoped that it will pass the senate and soon become a law.

"When these two institutions are completed the government for the first time in its history will be equipped for the care of its prisoners in its own institutions along modern lines such as are in vogue in some of the more progressive states.

Lack of Employment.

"The most troublesome problem in the administration of the federal prison system has been the lack of employment. Idleness has been the greatest evil. Idleness leads to deterioration mentally, morally and physically. The penal institutions should be self-sustaining. Employment of prisoners in the manufacture of supplies for the use of the government is the solution. Such enterprises can be made thoroughly profitable to the government and at the same time highly beneficial to the prisoners. This has been demonstrated in the case of the duck mill, established at the Atlanta penitentiary some years ago. Recognizing this, congress provided for the establishment of a shoe factory at the Leavenworth penitentiary, the product of which will be entirely used by different government agencies. Nothing made in this factory will be sold in the open market. As is done at the duck mill at Atlanta, the prisoners at Leavenworth employed in the shoe factory will be paid a nominal wage.

"Approximately 1,200 acres of additional land have been secured for the Leavenworth and McNeil Island penitentiaries. Besides providing healthful outdoor employment for a number of men, the cost to the government of the maintenance of the prisoners in these institutions will be materially reduced. At the Atlanta penitentiary some 350 acres of river-bottom land that was practically useless because of its being flooded at certain seasons is being reclaimed through the co-operation of the Department of Agriculture."

HARTMAN THEATER

Immediately following her very successful season in New York in the same play, Arthur Hopkins will present Ethel Barrymore at the Hartman theater, Columbus, for three days beginning next Monday, January 19, in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's masterpiece, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Miss Barrymore's many friends will be keenly interested in her appearance and the role of Paula that she has in this new play is another portrait to add to the many she has already portrayed.

The role of Paula in this famous play is said to crown Miss Barrymore's success as a star. The play has been staged by Mr. Hopkins himself and has been given unusual settings and scenes. Miss Barrymore is supported by a cast of equal caliber, which includes Henry Daniell, Lionel Pape, J. Colvin Dunn and Margot Kelly. There will be a matinee Wednesday. Mail orders now.

The last half of next week starting Thursday, January 22, thru Saturday, will bring another celebrated star to the Hartman theater--Jane Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet" and in "The Depths" a new play by Dr. Hane Mueller. Miss Cowl will be seen in "Romeo and Juliet," in which she has created such a sensation all over the country, on Thursday and Friday nights and on Saturday afternoon and in "The Depths" on Saturday night. With her will be seen Rollo Peters, as "Romeo" and also with her in "The Depths" besides a supporting cast that has been with her constantly for years. Mr. Peters is one of the best actors of the present day.

There has been an unusually heavy advance sale for both of these stars. It would be advisable to secure seats soon. There will be a Wednesday matinee of Barrymore and a Saturday matinee of Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet."

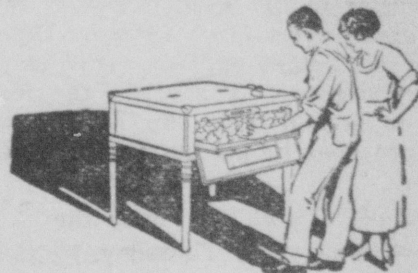

Music Played or Heard.

See the effects of a long piece of music at a public concert. The orchestra is breathless with attention, jumping to major and minor keys, executing fugues, and adding with the most ecstatic precision. In the midst of all this wonderful science, the audience is gaping, loling, talking, staring about, and half devoured with ennui. On a sudden there springs up a lively little air, expressive of some natural feeling, though in point of science not worth a half-penny; the audience all spring up, every head nods, every foot beats time, and every heart also; an universal smile breaks out on every face; the carriage is not ordered; and everyone agrees that music is the most delightful rational entertainment that the human mind can possibly enjoy.-- Sydney Smith.

LEEK LOSES PRESTIGE

As Welsh National Emblem—Royalty Prefers Daffodil.

London, Jan. 20.—The leek is no longer the national emblem of Wales. It has been replaced by the daffodil, to the utter dismay of many Welshmen.

For generations the Welsh people have worn the modest vegetable in their hat bands on St. David's Day with the same pride and éclat with which, on the days of their patron saints, the English wear the rose, the Scotch the thistle and the Irish the shamrock.

Suddenly and unheralded His Majesty's printers have turned out stationery with the daffodil on the crest instead of the leek. It remains to be seen whether or not the golden flower which so enraptured Wordsworth will please those Welsh who had no say in its adoption as their emblem.

The facetiously inclined remark that, whatever the officials in London have done to kill the leek, it may be taken as certain that the breath of life is still in the ancient emblem. In fact, they point out, breath is one of the leek's strong points.

BURMESE CHILD AMAZES PRIESTS

Burma.—The Minze village, in Pantaw township, in Burma, a few weeks ago was unknown except to village officers and a few government servants, but Maung Tun Kyang, a Burmese child of four years and eight months, has made it famous.

Born of young Burmese cultivators hailing from this village, Master Maung has astonished the Buddhist priests of Bogale, the headquarters of the Pyapon district, by the very stirring sermons on metaphysical themes which he preaches to select audiences. A correspondent, a pleader, writing to the Rangoon Gazette in the second week of October, gives interesting information about this boy's wonderful gift of reading at sight most difficult passages from Pali metaphysical works and repeating them from memory after a single perusal.

How He Was Discovered.

Another correspondent of the same paper tells how this remarkable child was discovered. The parents, it seems, were coming to Bogale, and on inquiry from the child told him that they were going to stay at a zayat, or rest house, near a monastery where lived a Buddhist priest of their acquaintance.

The child insisted on taking an offering to the monastery. The father said he had no money with which to buy an offering. However, a Burmese boat was anchored near the landing stage loaded with sugar cane. The boy suggested that they should take some sugar cane, but the father could not afford to pay even for this. The boy went to the owner of the boat and requested him to give them some cane for an offering. The owner very charitably gave him two bundles. The child thereupon gave him a blessing in Burmese, as well as in Pali, in an extremely orthodox formula, which it seemed impossible for a child of four to learn.

Shows Profound Knowledge.

On leaving the boat the boy pointed out an incorrect spelling on the sign-board of the landing. The whole incident was related to the presiding poongyi, or priest, of the monastery, who examined the boy very closely. He found that the child was able to read and write both Pali and Burmese quite correctly and with ease, and also able to answer questions on intricate and abstruse points of the ashid hamma (Buddhist psychology). The boy has had long discussions on old Buddhist doctrines, and the priests are convinced that his is a case of knowledge carried on from a former life when he was a Buddhist himself.

Bogale has become a center of pilgrimage to devout Buddhists, who believe that Master Maung has come back to the world to proclaim anew the teachings of the Buddha.

More Boy Babies Than Girls in United States

Washington.—Figures compiled by the census bureau of the Department of Commerce show a great many more male than female children are born to American mothers.

"Almost invariably, wherever birth records exist, the number of male births exceeds the number of female births," said the report.

"The masculinity of births varies considerably for the different race stocks," it is explained. "For example, in 1922, for the white, in the birth registration area, the greatest masculinity (1,062 to 1,000 females) appears for children of mothers born in the United States and Ireland, while the lowest (1,021 and 1,025) are for children of mothers born in unnamed countries and Italy, respectively.

"The negro, year after year, shows comparatively low masculinity, the greatest for this race in any of the six years from 1917 to 1922 being 1,033 in 1918.

The birth rate for 1922 was 22.5 to 1,000 of population, and the death rate 11.9 in 1,000.

There is a substantial excess of births over deaths in every state in the birth registration area.

Chinese Posts Operated Often at Risk of Life

Washington.—American postal officials were keenly interested in the report of the Chinese post office, just received, for 1923. Not only have postal couriers been killed in the performance of their duties, but one postmaster has been missing for six months, and his fate is unknown.

"Acknowledgment is made of the fidelity, patience and loyalty of the many employees whose lot during the year has been a hard one," says the report. "Couriers have in some cases been killed, inland postmasters and their staffs have been kidnapped—and the fate of the postmaster of Tsao-yang (Hupei) is still unknown after six months—and sectional inspectors have encountered difficulties and endured hardships of many kinds, being robbed sometimes twice over the same journey. The administration is singularly favored in the quality of the services they have rendered, for it is to these services that the extraordinary integrity and security of the mails is due."

Holly Used as Symbol.

It was usual at Roman weddings to present the bride with a wreath of holly, significant of the warmest congratulations. In India and Persia the followers of Zoroaster, the founder of fire worship, soak pieces of holly bark in water and throw the infusion in the faces of newly born babies, believing this will insure them prosperity and safety in this world.

AUTO OWNERS, ATTENTION!

The president of the United States said to the delegates to the recent National Conference on Street and Highway Safety:—

"If death and disaster that now fall upon innocent people thru the year and over our country as a whole, were concentrated into one calamity, we would shudder at the tremendous catastrophe." "The evil you are combating is so widespread as to be of national concern, and we do well to look at it with a country wide vision."

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who called the conference, stated in his address to the delegates:

"The vast majority of motorists are conscientious and careful and competent. It is the inconsiderate, the careless, the incompetent, who are bringing these dangers—35% to 50% of all accidents are chargeable to them. The conscientious, careful motorists are victims as well as the pedestrian."

Twenty-four (24) states have, at the present time, bills before their legislature, requiring all motorists to deposit securities, or furnish bond, or carry Liability Insurance in an approved insurance company for protection of the public.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

FATHER OF BURNED CHILDREN JAILED

Elk River, Minn., Jan. 20.—Frank Bedoch, father of five small girls who were burned to death in a paper shack eight miles north of here Sunday, sat in jail today.

County Attorney Robert A. Hastings said a warrant would be issued for Bedoch, if the facts warrant.

Bedoch was arrested on recommendation of the Coroner's jury that he be held for further investigation. Taking his arrest calmly, Bedoch refused to make a statement. The county attorney said it appeared Bedoch was negligent in making no attempt to save the children. Bedoch replying to questions at the inquest said both he and his wife tried to save the children, but barely had time to escape from the shack themselves.

AMUSEMENTS

The latest of cinema thrillers came to town last night and those who went to the Met theater yesterday, enjoyed an hour of real entertainment. "Open All Night" is the name of this new Paramount production which Paul Bern produced from the screen play by Willis Goldbeck. Incidentally, this is Mr. Bern's debut in the directorial field which prompts us to say that if it's a sample of what he can do more power to him.

As far as picture plays go, "Open All Night" is something new. Here we have subtlety and charm intermingled with physical action and punch, fine humor and a highly entertaining story. And to top it all a flawless cast. The outstanding feature of the film is the six day bike race around which the plot revolves, and which in itself is worth several times the price of admission.

The story deals with a young Parisian society matron who is bored to tears because of her husband's tame love-making. She craves caveman tactics and one night decided to go in search of her ideal man. She finally finds him at the Winter Circus where the International Bicycle race is in progress, in the person of Petit Mathieu, a champion bicycle rider. Events take an unexpected turn when friend husband discovers her and starts acting as a caveman himself. And from that point on the film is an alternating succession of giggles, chuckles and laughs.

There are thrills by the score for every member of the audience in the great bicycle race scenes, filmed in an arena which is an exact duplicate of the great track in the Winter Circus, Paris.

Every member of the superlative cast gives a great performance. Viola Dana, Adolphe Menjou, Jetta Goudal, Maurice ("Lefty") Flynn, Raymond Griffith and Gale Henry have the leading roles. By all means see this picture.

BIG FARM BUREAU MEETING.

The Armory was crowded this morning by members of the Farm Bureau, some three hundred and fifty members were present. The morning session was given over principally to the reading of annual reports.

A number of prominent state speakers, will make addresses on various subjects.

Telegraphing Pictures.

A French inventor's process for telegraphing pictures uses a system of hollows and reliefs, the passage of a stylus over which determines the intensity of the current transmitted.

KEEPING WELL

THE MODERN SCHOOL GIRL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

ARE the girls of today stronger and healthier than their grandmothers were at their age? This is a question on which you can get a different opinion from almost every person you ask, depending on their own experience and observation. The only way the question could be answered would be by comparing a large number of measurements of girls of the same age, taken for many years.

Such figures exist in the records of the department of physical education of Oberlin college, the first college in this country to admit women on an equality with men. Since 1880, nearly forty years ago, every girl student, on entering, has been carefully weighed and measured and her physical development watched during her four years' course. Comparing the girl students of forty years ago with those of today, do they show improvement or decline in health and development?

Freshmen college girls of today average nine months younger on entrance than they did forty years ago, yet they are nearly two (1.6) inches taller. They have nearly twenty-five cubic inches greater lung capacity. Their chest expansion has increased from 1.7 inches to 3.5 inches. Their physical strength is 25 per cent greater than their predecessors of forty years ago.

These records prove, beyond question, that the freshman college girl of today is larger, stronger and healthier than the freshman college girl of forty years ago.

As these figures show the physical condition of girls on entering college, the improvement must be due to changes in the habits of living of girls in the pre-college period. These changes are probably due to two factors, first, the increase of sports and games for girls, and second, the change in dress.

Forty years ago, there were few sports for girls. Today, our high-school girls play tennis, hockey, indoor baseball and basketball; they can swim and dance; they play practically all the games that their brothers do.

The growing girl of today, instead of being pinched by corsets and tight clothes and hampered by clinging skirts, has freedom to exercise her muscles and develop her body such as her grandmother never dreamed of. She is taller, deeper chested and stronger than the girl of forty years ago.

BIGAMIST IS IGNORANT OF THE LAW

Married Thelma Fausnaugh January 3—Has Another Wife in Kentucky.

Paris Keaton, 29, who married Thelma Fausnaugh, 23, the divorced wife of Dewey Fausnaugh, Saturday, January 3, in this city, was placed under arrest Thursday by Officers Warner and McCrady and was placed in the city jail on the charge of being a bigamist. He had a preliminary hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick Wednesday night. Keaton admitted that he had a wife and two children living in Morgan county, Kentucky.

He said that he did not know it was against the law to have more than one wife.

Mayor Fitzpatrick bound the man over to the grand jury in the sum of $1,000. Being unable to furnish the bond, he was placed in the county jail.

Keaton and Thelma Fausnaugh were married by Justice E. C. Friece. He has been working on the Niles land near the Red river bridge the past month clearing timber.

BASKETBALL NOTES.

Basketball fans will have an opportunity to see another fast and furious game tonight when the C. A. C.'s meet the Arlington Collegians and we expect this contest to be fully as close and exciting as the one last week. Those who saw the game already know that the club has an A-1 team, but for the benefit of any who have been unable to attend the last few games, we will state that each individual member on the team is doing most excellent playing. Altho the published reports have given our forwards special mention as being responsible for goal getting (and they deserve it) we must not forget that Mason, Morgan and Robinson have to bear the brunt of the battle when it comes to taking the ball away from the opponents; and to a keenly observant fan that part of the game is very often as sensational as basket shooting. A preliminary game will be in at 7:15.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

DOBSON, NEW CHIEF OF FORTY AN' EIGHT

A contagious twinkle of the eye, a fetching smile, a merry laugh, made George Dobson's election as chief de chemin de fer of La Societe des Quarante Hommes et Huit Chevaux, popularly known as the Forty an' Eight or playground of the American Legion, almost a foregone conclusion. With his Legion record, they made a rare combination of personality and achievement which was irresistible. His protests that he feared he would not be able to accept counted for little. They were voted down with enthusiasm.

Born in Scarborough, England, in 1886, the new chief came to America as a lad of ten. After attending the public schools at Brooklyn, N. Y., and Passaic, N. J., he received the degree of mechanical engineer at Cornell university in 1909. He has been employed as a telephone engineer with the Western Electric company.

Dobson was commissioned as a Lieutenant in the Signal Corps Reserves in June, 1917. He served in the office of the chief signal officer of the Eastern department, as personal aide to Lieut. Col. F. B. Jewett in the division of research and inspection in the Signal corps, A. E. F., and as Signal corps inspector in Army Park C Signal corps, First army.

Joining Passaic post No. 8 of the American Legion, he served as commander for two years. He was the first county chairman of Passaic county and is a member of the department executive committee. He was chief de gare or head of Voiture locale No. 8, Forty an' Eight, and served two terms as grand chef de gare of New Jersey. He was elected sous chef de chemin de fer in the national organization in 1921 and was commissaire Intendant in 1922 and 1923.

Predicts Another War Within Next Few Years

"Another World war more terrific and on a larger scale than the late war is pending and will occur within the next decade," was the prediction of Maj. Thomas Amory Lee of Topeka, Kan., who recently returned from London where he attended the Fifth Annual Congress of the Fidac, the federation of inter-allied veterans' organizations, as a delegate from the American Legion. Major Lee arrived at this conclusion from addresses he had heard at the Fidac congress by some of the leaders in the world peace movement. "Even among the most optimistic," he declared, "the feeling that the world is in imminent danger of another such catastrophe as the World war is prevalent."

Among other observations made by Major Lee while abroad was that all nations are making an attempt to urge the responsibilities of the world upon the United States, and that the British Isles are following the example set by the United States in the Eighteenth Amendment.

Savings Plan to Aid Men to Get to Paris

How would you like to go to Paris in 1928, with time to see and be seen and no M. P. on the job? That is the hope, exactly. Paris in 1928 as the national convention city will probably be an actuality as far as the official and delegate body of the Legion is concerned, but what about buck private of the Legion—how are they going to "alleg a Paris" without quartering in the steerage, sleeping in a hammock and subsisting on boiled tripe for the duration of the trip? An enterprising bank in Ohio has endeavored to show the way by the institution of a "Paris Savings Club." A dollar or two deposited with the club every week will do the trick, the bank points out, and the buck will not be missed now. Not a bad idea for all below the rank of corporal to cogitate over.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

(United Press.)

Ashtabula, an. 22.—Mrs. Katherine Beaver died here last night at the age of 102.

Steubenville, Jan. 22.—The city council passed a resolution congratulating Mrs. Bridget McKay on her 100th birthday anniversary.

Toledo, Jan. 22.—Red roses embroidered on flesh colored or black hose just below the knee declared to be fashion's best buy by merchants here who say skirts will be shorter.

Columbus, Jan. 22.—R. H. Ranier lowered his two small children to the ground from an upper story window on a rope made of a bed sheet when fire broke out in their home today. Rainer and his wife then made their way to safety thru the smoke filled house.

Steubenville, Jan. 22.—Five girl high school students were expelled today for smoking cigarettes in a school locker room.

Cincinnati, Jan. 22.—A new $700,000 home for girls is planned by the Sacred Heart Guild here.

Columbus, O. Jan. 22.—Ohio's pig crop is diminishing, will continue to decrease and compiled figures do not indicate the full extent of the reduction, C. J. West, crop statistician for the state federal crop reporting service said in a report today.

The fall crop of pigs was 10% below the 1923 fall crop, the report showed. Taking the corn belt as a whole, the decline was 23%. There is a reduction of more than 15% in the number of breeding animals kept for next spring for Ohio and 11% for the corn belt, West said.

Norwood, O., Jan. 21.—Petitions were put in circulation today calling upon Governor Donahey to remove Mayor Louis Molte and Police Chief Andre Hart.

The campaign against the two officials launched by citizens who resent their action in breaking up an anti-Catholic meeting here last Sunday night with a teargas bomb.

Several women were injured in a panic which followed the release of the bomb.

Dayton, O., Jan. 21.—A match, lighted by a smoker, set off a terrific blast of gas in the office of the Webster street fire department shortly before noon, which sent three men to hospitals and caused damage to the extent of $5000.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 21.—Alcohol rub got me into this jam." This is the explanation given by James Scott, alias Thompson, 24 years old jail breaker who was shot and wounded by county officers upon whom he fired Monday afternoon. "I was crazed and didn't really know what I was doing," he continued as he lay in a hospital here today.

Milwaukee, Jan. 21.—Coach Frank J. Murray, for three years Marquette University grid mentor, may go to Washington college, St. Louis, Washington athletic authorities have made Murray an offer which he says he may accept. Marquette lost two games in the three seasons Murray has coached the golden avalanche.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Mike Romano, who claims the Italian heavyweig mat title, signed to meet Has Volkoff, Bulgarian champion here Friday night, the winner will challenge Munn, now world's title holder.

South Bend, Jan. 21.—Notre Dame students will set up a memorial tablet to perpetuate the names of the 1924 National championship grid squad at a celebration Friday night in honor of the team. Jimmy Crowley, one of the four horsemen, who has been ill in San Francisco, will be here for the blowout.

Tree Trunk Doesn't Grow.

Tree trunks do not grow in length between the tap root and the lowest branch. Also the tap root when cut off at a special length always remains the same length, for it is but the trunk or body below the soil. Both root and body may branch, or lengthen by new leaders.

Find Omens in Chicken Bones. Chickens' bones are the "Where's It?" book of the Red Karen tribe in Burma. The Karen, according to the National Geographic Magazine, consults them to know where he should build his village or his house; whether he should start on a journey, and if so, in what direction, on what day and at what hour; whether he should marry a certain girl, and, if the omens approve, on what day he should do it; where he should make his bill-clipping, when he should prepare, sow and reap it; in fact, he does nothing without authority from fowls' bones. Like all their neighbors, the Red Karen are spirit-worshippers, and the names of their divinities seem to be much the same for all. Some of the spirits are bad, some indifferent and a few amiable. The malignant ones are sedulously worshiped with sacrifices, the others only at moments of expansiveness, after surplus liquor has been consumed.

Optimistic Thought.

Age is venerable in a man—and would be in a woman if she ever became old.

THE MORNING TELEGRAPH A remarkably skillful blending of history and romance. Those concerned in its production have succeeded in making something epic in quality. They have handled the historical data and spectacular side of it excellently, yet they have never lost sight of the intimate story. The picture's high point is the sequence showing General Washington crossing the Delaware. This is no less than inspiring.

Hanging Pictures.

It is easy to make mistakes in the hanging of pictures. Observing the following as a guide, you will make fewer mistakes in this respect. First, a plain paper for the room is almost imperative. This will give you an opportunity to use all the pictures, no matter what they are. Soft grays and terra cotta tones are best for background. Avoid figured and highly-colored papers as these prevent the picture from standing out. Be careful not to tilt the pictures too much. Hang them almost flat.

Peculiar Ice Block
A steam shovel, working on a new highway, near Reno, Nev., uncovered a huge block of ice under the ground, measuring 60 feet in length, 20 feet in width and 10 feet in thickness. It is believed that originally the ice, which is estimated to be about forty years old, was a field of snow on the mountain side above, and was compressed into its present form by an avalanche of earth, rocks and trees.

Horsehair and Snakes
The statement that if you place a horsehair in a puddle of water it will turn into a snake is ridiculous on the face of it, though apparently many people still believe it. It should be easy to demonstrate with a horsehair. The fact that a hair or similar object placed in water has a tendency to wriggle and twist like a live object has given rise to this superstition.

Home Inspires Confidence
Home ownership inspires self-respect in individuals, which, in turn, stimulates in others respect for them—makes of them better men and women, better American citizens, better husbands and wives, better parents. It gives them a standing and an influence in a community second only to the influence exercised by intellectual and moral character.—Exchange.

Physicians attending Frank A. Vanderlip, international banker, announced he will be confined to his home at Scarborough, N. Y., for some time. He is suffering from typhoid fever.

Lesson for January 25
JESUS COMFORTS HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—John 14:1-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."—John 14:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Heavenly Home.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Walking in Christ's Way.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Comforts His Disciples.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sources of the Christian's Comfort.

The hopes of the disciples were utterly shattered when Jesus told them about the cross. Jesus had told them that He was going away, and that they could not follow Him. Their hearts were flooded with grief. He consoled them by

I. Pointing to the Reunion in the Father's House (vv. 1-3).

1. He Asks Them to Trust in Him Even as God (v. 1). Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief or how great the sorrow.

2. He Informed Them That He Was Going to the Father's House in Heaven to Prepare a Home for Them (v. 2). He assured them that there was abundant room for all. Heaven is an eternal dwelling place.

3. He Assured Them That He Would Come Again and Escort Them to Heaven (v. 3). Jesus will not wait for His own to come to Him, but will come and call forth from the graves those who have died, and transform living believers, and take them all to be with Himself in the heavenly home forevermore (1 Thess. 4:16-17).

II. Revealing the Way to the Father's House (vv. 4-11).

Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the place to which He was going and the way. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserts that He is

1. The Way to God (v. 6). He is something more than a mere guide or teacher. He is the way itself. He is the door of the sheep-fold.

2. The Truth (v. 6). He is not merely the teacher, but the truth incarnate. In His incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united, therefore every line of truth whether spiritual or material converges in Him. No one who does not have Christ can ever have the real truth about anything. In Him we have the truth about man, what he is, what he ought to be, and what he shall be in eternity. In Him especially we have the truth about God.

3. The Life (v. 6). Christ is not merely the giver of life, but He is the essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the true sense. Since He is God incarnate, to know Him is to know God.

III. Assuring Them That His Work Was to Continue (vv. 12-14).

Jesus' going away was not to end the work which He had begun. This no doubt meant that through the ministry of the Spirit-filled disciples, the work which Christ began would assume larger proportions. There would be a much greater number of conversions than under His ministry. After the Day of Pentecost the gospel did take a much wider range. During His ministry the message was confined to the Jews, while under the ministry of the disciples it was only limited by the world itself. The disciples' ministry was ushered in by the conversion of three thousand in one day.

IV. Promises Another Comforter (vv. 12-17).

The word comforter means literally one called to the side of another to give help, protection and deliverance. This comforter was the Holy Spirit. Jesus was the Comforter while here in the body. The Holy Spirit was to be "another comforter."

V. Assuring Them of His Return to Them (vv. 18-24).

Although Christ went away He did not leave His disciples as orphans. The Father and the Son make their abode with the disciples who love and obey Jesus Christ.

VI. Assuring Them That the Holy Spirit Would Aid Them in Remembering and Understanding His Words (vv. 25-28).

This the Holy Spirit does by illuminating the minds of the disciples.

VII. Giving the Legacy of His Peace (vv. 22-31).

By His peace is meant the serenity of soul which one enjoys who is reconciled to God, who knows that his sins are forgiven.

Doing Better

It is not a question of how much we are to do, but of how it is to be done. It is not a question of doing more, but of doing better.—John Ruskin.

Duty

Do the duty that lies nearest thee; which thou knowest to be a duty! The second duty will already become clearer.—Carlyle.

Tomorrow

Where is tomorrow? In another world. To numbers this is certain. The reverse is sure to none.

Sorrow and Joy

Obstinate Chests-of-Drawers.
E. V. Lucas tells of an innkeeper who in his will set apart the interest on £300 for an annual supper to the newsboys of his town; and of another man who left the interest on £1,000 to pay for "a treat" to certain school children, "to be in the nature of a surprise." Mr. Lucas himself would like to leave the interest on £1,000 "to that maker of chests-of-drawers whose drawers presented least resistance to the user!"

Nary a Blush.
Said the facetious feller: "Strange as it may seem, there is no blush following financial embarrassment."

New Railroad Equipment

An electric "track-walking car" which makes possible detailed examination of railroad tunnels and the immediate repair of any minor defects has been developed in Germany. Previously a pedestrian track-walker has been used to make these inspections and report necessary repairs after each trip. With the "track-walking car," which is especially designed to be driven by electricity or hauled by an ordinary locomotive, the repair crew goes along and is available to make repairs at once. A battery of 54 electric lights provides ample illumination for work in tunnels.

OHIO UTILITIES AGREE TO MOVE STREET LIGHT

Ordinance Regulating Parking of Motor Vehicles Was Introduced.

Council met in regular session Wednesday evening, January 21, with President John C. Goeller, presiding and all members present.

Mr. Shaner, chairman of the finance committee submitted a schedule showing the appropriations for the fiscal half year ending June 30, 1925. After due consideration and on motion of Mr. Shaner the schedule as prepared by the finance committee was accepted and approved.

Mr. Baker reported that the Ohio Utilities company had agreed to move the street light now located on West Franklin street, a distance of about one hundred feet west, without charge to the city. The director of public service was requested to have the Ohio Utilities company move this street light as reported.

Mr. Leist reported that the director of public service would furnish an estimate of the probable cost of making the repairs and changes in the basement of the city building as recommended by Mr. T. P. Kearns, state inspector.

Mr. Shaner as chairman of the committee consisting of all members of council to whom had been referred the ordinance providing for the issuing of bonds for the purchase of the Pickaway Water company's plant stated that the committee was not ready as yet to make a report and asked for further time; there being no objections further time was granted.

Director of Public Service Schneider reported to council that it would cost between $600 and $700 to place a new ceiling and cement floor in the basement of the city building to cut down the windows and change the stairway and also to place a steel ceiling in the mayor's office and court room. On motion the report was received.

Director Schneider reported to council that the Ohio Utilities company would remove its poles off South Court street and place the same in the alley.

An ordinance making appropriations for the current expenses for the city during the fiscal half year ending June 30, 1925, in the following amounts, was read for the first time. General government fund, $3,068 00 Public safety fund 6,330 00 Public health fund 390 00 Public service fund 14,025 00 Public library fund 2,960 00

The rules were suspended and this ordinance was placed upon its passage carried and was passed.

A resolution appointing A. J. Lyle, Charles Mason and Lewis I. Morris, three disinterested free holders as a board to estimate the assessments of the cost on the lots and lands abutting on Franklin street for the paving of Franklin street, was introduced and read for the first time.

On motion of Mr. Baker the rules were suspended and this resolution was adopted.

An ordinance regulating the parking of motor vehicles within a certain distance from the property and curb line from any corner formed by the crossing of intersecting of certain streets with each other was introduced and read for the time. On motion of Mr. Marion the rules were suspended and the ordinance placed upon its passage.

Girl Commercial Sculptor

Miss Merle Foster, a young Canadian girl, has found a calling that is bringing her success. She is a commercial sculptor. When an architect wants a wall or cornice decoration, a griffin or a gargoyle, he consults Miss Foster who attended the art school in Toronto for six years, where she proved that she has a rare talent for modeling.

The first time that the girl saw a potter at his wheel she asked for the privilege of trying her hand in a pottery line of work and was amazed at the facility with which she turned out a vase, says a writer in the Argonaut. In a few months she had become an expert at the wheel and was able to give an exhibition of pottery in a large department store. Next she learned that there was a big field in the modeling of architectural details, medallions, fountains, garden urns and wall ornaments, and set about acquiring technical knowledge. When she had attained sufficient experience she opened her own studio and with her sister as business manager has been most successful.

TRACES SOURCE OF 'AMERICAN BEAUTY'

Geography of Cosmetics Seen to Be Shifting.

Washington, D. C.—"The geography of cosmetics is shifting," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Formerly the women of the United States drew upon the more sophisticated countries of Europe for the boxed and bottled substances that alter their appearance for better or for worse. Now they are coming more and more to use what might be called 'made in America' complexion," and the country is even exporting aids to beauty to the ends of the earth.

"The big three in the world of cosmetics are powder, rouge and cream; and of these stand-bys of the feminine toilet table the United States exports about $2,500,000 worth annually. This probably is close to the value of the imports of these specific substances, for the greater part of the $9,000,000 worth of 'perfumery and cosmetics' brought into the country each year is made up of perfumes and perfume materials. Many times the amount of the exports and imports of powders, creams and rouges are consumed in American homes—and on American street corners—for the value of the products turned out annually by the perfumers and cosmetic manufacturers of the United States is between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000.

"For the best rouge the consumers of the United States must still look beyond the country's borders. The original coloring material was dried red corollas of the thistlelike safflower plant of the Near East. The plant is cultivated in France and still is the source of the bloom on millions of rosy cheeks. Much of the coloring matter of commercial rouges is carmine, the red obtained from the crushed, dried bodies of the cochineal insect, also a foreign substance.

Face Powders.

"Face powders are made of ground and boiled talc and chalk, rice powder and corn powder. Of the last named ingredient America possesses vast quantities, but unfortunately the grains of cornstarch are about three times the size of those of rice starch, and therefore do not make as high-grade face powders. Much rice is grown in the United States and home-produced as well as imported rice powder is metamorphosed into the Poudre de Riz of the cosmetic counter.

"Tremendous quantities of talc and chalk are used annually in the form of talcum powder and in combination with rice and corn powders. Low-grade powders are made from domestic talc mined in several eastern states, but for highest grade powders the manufacturers import their materials. Annual imports of talc and chalk amount to about 10,000,000 pounds from Italy and 5,000,000 pounds from France.

"Cold cream is the typical cream cosmetic and one of the oldest of the beauty aids used today. Savages started the cold cream habit millions of years ago with rancid butter and salt.

"Face powders and rouges are largely for application to the cheeks, but no other facial feature has been permitted to escape the cosmetic specialist. There are henna and other washes for the hair, eyebrow pencils, lipsticks, lash pastes, and 'shadow' coloring for eyelids. In addition the well appointed cosmetic shop offers hand lotions, and nail polishes and enamels, and such general cosmetics as skin foods, complexion clays and sunburn removers.

"Henna is extracted from the leaves of an Egyptian plant. The coloring matter of eyebrow pencils and lash pastes may be India ink or coal-tar dyes. Most lipsticks are made of greases stiffened with beeswax and colored with carmine or safflower. The majority of the hand lotions and vanishing creams contain glycerin, of which the United States produces ample quantities. Nail polishes usually contain tin oxide and nail varnishes and enamels consist of resinous gums, mostly imported. The ingredient par excellence for 'skin foods' is cocoa butter, the fat produced as a by-product in chocolate and cocoa manufacture. The cocoa butter imported as such comes chiefly from the Netherlands and Germany.

United States Helps World Keep Clean.

"Soap, the basic substance in the toilets of men and women alike, is made in vast quantities in the United States, and more than $3,000,000 worth is exported annually. Various oils, treated with alkalis, are used in soap manufacture, including our own cottonseed oil. Coconut, olive and palm oils are the standard fatty substances employed, however. Annually the Philippines contribute $16,000,000 worth of coconut oil, while $50,000,000 worth of olive oil comes from Italy and Spain, and $55,000,000 worth of palm oil is imported directly from British West Africa and via England from other tropical countries.

"The history of soap is closely intertwined with the history of modern civilization. It is believed that the Phoenicians were the first to make soap and that they taught the art to the Gauls. The Gauls in turn taught the Romans their rather crude method of treating tallow with wood ashes. The Romans improved the method somewhat. A complete soap factory whose product was doubtless highly prized by the beauties of ancient Rome, has been found among the ruins of Pompeii. From Rome the use of soap has continually spread farther and farther. One might say that civilization has slipped around the world on a film of soap."

From Monastery to Hotel

Wonderful stories have been told of the courage and devotion of the monks of the Trappist monastery on the Grand St. Bernard pass, and their equally famous and wonderful dogs. Now this historic institution is doomed to pass, and the monastery is to be converted into a hotel under the direction of a professional manager. Tourists will have to pay ordinary hotel rates during their stay. The reason apparently is that visitors have not given to the church box as liberally as they might, though this is a curious commentary on the type of persons now using the Swiss roads. When one stayed at the hospice in the past, really excellent, though plain, fare was provided, and the answer to the query as to the amount of the bill was always the same, "What you would pay for similar accommodation at a hotel."

Experimental.

"Dad," inquired a small boy, "what is a test case?" "A test case, my son," replied his parent. "Is a case brought into court to decide whether there's enough in it to justify lawyers in working up more cases of a similar kind!"
